

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

i feel this is wrong and if they are able to air "stolen honor" than the documentary "going upriver" about kerry should be played right after it. IT'S ONLY FAIR!! if stations can no longer choose what they want to air and are told what they have to air, this is not a democracy and a sad day in america. i feel that kerry served his country with honor and noone has the right to take that away from him. this is just a ploy to attract swing voters. i sometimes wonder what is fair anymore after the last presidential election. you can make a difference!! please ban the showing of "stolen honor" for the sake of democracy in america. lies are not democracy. YOU CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE!! thank you for listening. sincerely, marlene lake
